

MAJOR HAINS SAYS BROTHER WAS JUSTIFIED

In Shooting Annis and Likens Him to a Reptile.

JURY RETURNS VERDICT

Brothers Claim They Tried to Dissuade Capt. Hains from Killing Annis.

New York, Aug. 20.—Capping the statement of John F. McIntyre, counsel for Captain Peter C. Hains, Jr., that the latter's wife made three confessions of her faithlessness, one of which she signed, comes the report that Mrs. Hains is ready for a reconciliation with her husband. If the slayer of Wm. E. Annis will consent to it, it is said Mrs. Hains will take the stand in his defense and give startling testimony which will prove justification claimed by the army officer for the shooting of Annis.

"It is our full intention to make public at the proper time a full text of Mrs. Hains' confession," said Attorney McIntyre today, "and when it comes it will produce the greatest sensation that has broken into any criminal case in New York in 25 years. In view of the fact that the confession was signed in the presence of five reputable witnesses, I don't think we will have much trouble in disproving Mrs. Hains' alleged statement that the confession was wrong from her at the point of a revolver while she was drugged."

The story of Mrs. Hains' alleged confession as given out today, is a dramatic recital of her loneliness, following her husband's going to the Philippines, of her looking to her husband's friend for companionship and of his betrayal of that friend and the wife as well.

New York, Aug. 20.—After being out 22 minutes, a coroner's jury last night brought in a verdict that William E. Annis, who was killed last Saturday at Bayside, L. I., came to his death as the result of pistol shot wounds inflicted by Captain Peter C. Hains, Jr., U. S. A., aided and abetted by Thornton Jenkins Hains, his literary brother.

Only two witnesses were called. They were Charles H. Roberts of Flushing, who testified that he was standing on the club house float when he heard the report of a pistol shot and saw Captain Hains in a kneeling position clinging to the drooping body of Annis, as he emptied the contents of his revolver into it, and Coroner's Physician Walter G. Frey, who testified that Annis came to his death from the bullet wounds. Dr. Frey said there were nine initial wounds and 12 secondary wounds, which would indicate that Captain Hains had fired nine shots.

In cross examining Mr. Robert, Lawyer McIntyre asked him if Captain Hains had finished shooting when he tried to go to his aid and was stopped by Thornton Hains who held a revolver in his face. The witness said that the shooting had not ceased and that he would have had time to interfere had not Thornton Hains prevented.

Prior to his giving his testimony, Mr. Robert was asked to identify the prisoners. When he pointed out Captain Hains as the slayer the army officer put his hands over his face and seemed to be greatly excited. This caused comment in the court, for he has heretofore remained wholly unperurbed.

Before the inquest John F. McIntyre, chief of counsel for the Hains brothers, made the following statement to an Associated Press reporter:

"In answer to the statement made by Mrs. Hains that she was made to sign a confession while under the influence of drugs, I wish to say that my clients and their distinguished father have told me that there were four witnesses present when the confession was made, one of them being a prominent New York lawyer. These witnesses will testify at the trial. I am also told that Mrs. Hains talked to several persons regarding the incidents related in the confession some time before she made it, and these persons will be witnesses."

"When Captain Hains was called back from the Philippines he questioned his wife regarding rumors he had heard about her, and he became convinced that his suspicions were wrong. Later he said facts developed which made him demand the confession from his wife, and she made it. "Captain Hains denies that he sent letters to Annis, challenging him to a duel. Stories to this effect are absurd."

"What unbalanced Captain Hains' mind was the counter charges made by Mrs. Hains in a suit she filed in answer to his suit for divorce. Capt. Hains believed the statements made by Mrs. Hains in the counter suit were dictated by Annis."

Major John Powell Hains also made a statement to the Associated Press before the inquest. He was asked if he thought his brother was justified in shooting Annis without giving him a chance to protect himself.

"I can best answer that question by recalling an incident that happened to me at Fort Riley," he said. "I was about to put on my boot one morning when I found a snake in it. I quickly drew my revolver and shot the snake. It is the same with my brother. I do not believe he should have given Annis a chance."

"Knowing what you do of the case, would you do the same thing?" was asked.

"I most certainly would," he answered emphatically.

"Is it true, as the district attorney says, that your brother, Thornton Jenkins, instigated the shooting?" he was asked.

"Not at all," he replied. "For a long time Thornton and myself have tried to dissuade our brother from killing Annis for the sake of our gray haired father and mother. Out of consideration for them, our brother restrained himself, but finally the strain became too great and he acted. Peter would have killed Annis sooner had it not been for this."

John F. McIntyre, of counsel for Captain Hains, said that Capt. Hains' defense would be insanity, and that it will be easily proved.

It is probable that the Hains brothers will be placed on trial early in October.

SOLDIERS START RIOT

IN ATLANTA AND LOCAL POLICE AND REGULARS WERE CALLED OUT.

Great Excitement Prevailed, Number of Fights Occurred and Women Became Hysterical.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 20.—Late yesterday police reserves were called to the terminal to quell a riot that broke out among two companies of United States regulars en route from Fort Slocum to the Pacific coast. When the local police officers were unable to curb the soldiers, a call was made up on Fort McPherson for troops and Captain Bankhead, with a company of regulars, responded hurriedly.

The trouble started in the afternoon when a number of the soldiers en route broke out of their cars, which were on the side track at the terminal station, and it is said, began annoying passengers entering trains. Officer Hill of the local police force, knocked two of the soldiers down, and then trouble became general. Colonel Thompson of the Gulf department was notified and he responded and later Fort McPherson was called upon.

During the fighting a soldier named Frank Smith, was seriously stabbed and is now in a local hospital. Jos. A. Bleak, another soldier, was placed under arrest.

At 6:30 the officers had the men under control and under guard in their cars, and it is said the guard is sufficient to prevent further trouble.

The wildest excitement prevailed at the terminal station during the riot and many women became hysterical.

DUTCH ARE PREPARING FOR FIGHT

Warships Placed in Readiness to Reinforce Those in Caribbean

QUEEN OPPOSES WAR

Netherlands Government Will First Try Amicable Solution of Controversy.

The Hague, Aug. 20.—The Netherlands government is inclined for the present to adopt a waiting attitude in the dispute with Venezuela, but it is ready to take energetic steps whenever the developments of the situation demand. It has been agreed to push all necessary preparations in order to be ready to support an ultimatum should it be decided to forward one to President Castro. Work will be rushed night and day at the naval dockyards to complete the preparations needed by the warships there, so that they will be in readiness to reinforce the vessels now in the Caribbean by the end of next month.

In the meanwhile, every effort will be made to find a pacific solution of the dispute, especially in view of the facts that Queen Wilhelmina is opposed to resorting to war until all other methods and avenues have been tried.

The Netherlands cabinet, although it has outlined tentatively a general plan of procedure, has decided to await the arrival here of M. De Reus, the minister, who was expelled by President Castro, before coming to a definite decision, and it will not take the offensive, unless compelled to do so by Venezuela.

In the event of warlike measures it is understood that there will first be a naval demonstration off La Guaira. Subsequent action will depend on the result of this course. M. De Reus is expected here about August 24.

The terms of the Netherlands' answer to the letter of President Castro of Venezuela were fully discussed at an all-night session of the cabinet, and it is understood the actual text, as well as broad lines of action drawn up to meet any possible eventualities, were agreed upon.

In the diplomatic circles here the view is entertained that the present difficulty between Holland and Venezuela is not of a nature to be settled by arbitration, and in explanation it is pointed out that the dispute is not of a private commercial character, like the difficulties that have arisen between Venezuela and Great Britain, Germany and America. In these cases the governments in question sought satisfaction for claims, but Holland has no claim against Venezuela. It is maintained here that the present question is rather one of sovereignty and national honor, matters which are not susceptible of solution by arbitration.

INJURY OF MR. EDWARDS NOT SERIOUS

Plank Dropped by Workman Struck Him on the Head—Condition Improved.

The condition of Elias Edwards, 65 years of age, who was hurt by a plank which fell from the roof of a barn near St. Louisville and struck him on the head, is reported improved, and Dr. L. L. Marriott, the attending physician, stated Thursday that Mr. Edwards' injury was not of a serious nature.

The accident occurred Wednesday at the home of Mr. Edwards' son-in-law, Henry Weaver, near St. Louisville. A workman who was on the roof of the barn dropped a plank, which struck Mr. Edwards on the head just as he passed under the edge of the roof. The man was taken to the house and Dr. Marriott was called. He remained unconscious for about ten minutes. A number of stitches were required to close the gash of about three inches on the man's head. Mr. and Mrs. Edwards removed to the St. Louisville locality last year from Johnson, and are very well known throughout the county.

LUNCHEON WAS SERVED ON TOP OF BUILDING

By Mr. Eli Hull to His Employees—A Novel Affair Which Was Appreciated by All.

Mr. Eli Hull and his crew of employees, who are at work on the new structure on the west side of the public square, were up in the air Wednesday evening. They were up in the air as figuratively as it would be possible to apply the expression, for they enjoyed a banquet at a higher altitude than any that was ever before served in Newark.

ELI HULL,

Who Gave Novel Luncheon to Employees.

In order to complete the concrete roof on the new Hull building so that the concrete work on the structure would be finished by Saturday, the workmen were busy until a late hour Wednesday evening. After the work had been completed Mr. Hull served a delightful hot lunch to the party on the top of the new structure.

The kindness was greatly appreciated by all of the participants, and a vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Hull.

HAS MIRACULOUS ESCAPE FROM INSTANT DEATH

Brakeman Schock Has Foot Caught in Frog and Watches Train Bear Down Upon Him.

D. E. Schock, 60 Allen street, East Newark, a B. & O. yard man had a miraculous escape from death under the wheels of a switching train in the yards Wednesday midnight.

Schock was attending to his duties in the middle yards and was crossing a switch when his left foot was caught in the switch frog. He made desperate efforts to escape but found himself held fast, prisoner on the track while an engine with a half made up train bore down upon him. His frantic signals in the dark were of no avail as the engineer was unable to see him in time to stop. Then, what appears like a miracle happened. As the wheels of the advancing car struck the frog it partly released the man's foot so that he was able to save the member although it was badly mashed on one side, the second toe being severed and the great toe broken.

Crisis Bros. & Jones' ambulance made a flying run and took the man to the Newark Sanitarium where, although it was at first feared amputation would be necessary, the injury was properly dressed and the victim of the accident was left resting comfortably, thankful for his life.

Wigan, Eng., Aug. 20.—Though there is no hope of finding alive any of the 50 men entombed in the wrecked Maypole mine, rescuing parties are working with such desperation that it is feared a second calamity may overtake them as the result of encountering smoke and gases. A number of the rescuers have been overcome and are now in a dangerous condition.

SKIPPED WITH HUBBY'S MONEY

Hungarian Woman Leaves Town Intending to Meet Her Lover in Pittsburg.

Durian Popovich, a section hand of the B. & O. railroad, living at 156 Volodigham street, reported to the police this morning that his pretty young wife skipped town yesterday afternoon, and took with her $730 that was in a trunk in their home. The woman is thought to be in Pittsburg from a note found on Milan Kranic, her lover, who is under arrest in the city prison, and who was to have met her in that city today. The police of Pittsburg have been notified and are searching for the woman. Kranic will probably be charged with being an accessory to the theft.

HARRY PLATT IN WHEELING HOSPITAL

Coshocton, O., Aug. 20.—Harry Platt, who was reported mysteriously missing from his home here, has turned up in a hospital in a West Virginia city. While in Wheeling he was seized with an attack of appendicitis and was hurried to a hospital. Mr. Platt has suffered seven attacks of this disease in the past three years.

RECEIVED AN ELECTRIC SHOCK AT ZANESVILLE

While Adjusting Trolley Pole at Interurban Station—John Goff of This City, Badly Hurt.

Zanesville, Aug. 20.—John Goff, of Newark, a conductor on one of the limited interurban cars on the C. N. & Z. railway, had a miraculous escape from death at the local waiting room Wednesday morning. While adjusting the trolley pole on his car he received a severe electric shock and was thrown to the street.

An ambulance was called and Goff removed to the Good Samaritan hospital, where he will be given necessary attention until he recovers from his injuries. He is well and favorably known to the traveling public between this city and Columbus.

Mr. Goff was reported much better today and will probably return home this evening. He sustained a dislocated ankle and one bone was fractured at the joint.

YOST AGAIN STOLE HORSE IS ARRESTED

THORNTON JUSTICE HOLDS INSANE MAN TO THE GRAND JURY.

Father Will Bring Habeas Corpus Proceedings for His Release—Unusual Mania.

Albert Yost, a young man residing with his parents near Thornville and recently escaped from the State Hospital for the Insane at Columbus, is again in the toils of the law and was bound over today to the grand jury by Squire Lawyer of Thornville, for the theft of a horse.

Yost was under arrest here several months ago for horse stealing and after being arrested an affidavit for lunacy was filed against him in the Probate court. He was adjudged insane and sent to Columbus. He escaped and returned to his home and soon resumed his activities in the horse stealing line.

It seems that the young man has a mania for stealing horses, it being claimed that he has appropriated several at different times, though he never attempts to sell or dispose of them.

His father, it is said, will retain an attorney and institute a habeas corpus proceeding for the boy's release.

OFFICIALS

AT LOUDONVILLE BELIEVE THEY ARE NEAR SOLUTION OF MYSTERY.

Wife of Murdered Man and Her Mother Ordered Detained at Des Moines.

Loudonville, O., Aug. 20.—As a result of testimony developed at the second inquest into the shooting last Friday of Miss Hester Porter and her niece's husband, the authorities at Des Moines, Iowa, have been wired to detain Mrs. Mae Stein, wife of the dead man, and her mother, Morris Mary Bayard, sister of Miss Porter. Officials believe they are near the solution of the mystery and that a woman shot both.

His body will be taken to Stockport, Eastern Ohio, Friday morning at 8:25. The funeral will be held Saturday.

ROYAL WAS THE WELCOME GIVEN FLEET

Real Festivities at Sidney Will Begin With Sunrise Tomorrow

DINNER TO ADMIRAL

Pres. Roosevelt, Admiral Sperry, United States and the Fleet Toasted by Governor.

Sidney, Aug. 20.—Though the real festivities in connection with the visit of the American fleet which anchored this morning will not actually begin until tomorrow, the city and surrounding country are already buzzing with excitement. The only event on the entertainment program for today was the dinner to Admiral Sperry and his staff, by Governor General Northcote. There were toasts to President Roosevelt, Admiral Sperry, the fleet and country from which it sailed, and equal felicitations from the admiral for all things English.

It is estimated that hardly less than half a million people assembled to give the visitors a royal welcome. Sydney harbor, with its innumerable bays and coves, never looked more beautiful, nor did the American sailors ever witness a more inspiring sight than that which met their eyes as the white ships came through the channel, past the great headland into Port Jackson.

A hundred thousand people, the greatest single assemblage of all, gathered on the south heads, where a magnificent view of the whole scene was to be had. Hundreds of craft of all kinds moved up and down even at that early hour, all the waters, with the exception of the Fairway and the anchorages, being dotted with little and big vessels, decorated in every conceivable manner with flags and bunting.

A FAIR EXCHANGE

[Original.] She was a southern beauty just nineteen, he a West Point cadet two years her senior. She had been graduated at a young ladies' finishing school; he was about to be graduated into the United States cavalry. She had learned to write an essay. She didn't need to learn to write a love letter. She was born that way, just as a poet is born, not made. He had learned analytical geometry, conic sections and all that. He didn't need to learn to talk soft to a girl; he breathed the spirit of "spoon" in with the West Point air. The atmosphere there has been so long laden with it that it's impregnated—that is, in June, when the roses bloom. They were dawdling in flirtation walk.

"What an odd necklace," he remarked, glancing at a circle of finger rings fastened together by gold links she wore about her neck—"each ring different!"

"The donors were all different too."

"What do you mean by the donors?"

"Each ring was given me by—"

"An accepted suitor?"

"Well—"

"Don't deny it. Rather tell me about them."

"The rings or the suitors?"

"Both."

"Well, this turquoise cluster was given me by a flaxen haired, blue eyed boy when I was fifteen. He said he was desperately in love with me, and he was—for a month. This marquis solitaire I got from a young planter in Georgia. He tried to ride over a precipice later on, but his horse balked. This gypsy set pearl was from a professor. He was an old fellow, thirty-one at least. He taught Scandinavian or Egyptian literature or something of the sort. He'd never been anywhere, but he could talk so beautifully about the places he hadn't seen that he'd make you wish to go there. A doctor gave me this sapphire. He had been all over the world, but you'd never know it. He couldn't say boo to a goose. I used to say to him, 'My friend the professor could go through Chinatown and make you believe he'd been at Pekin when the allied forces entered; you would make a marionette squabble out of the battle of Gettysburg.'"

"I'll bet the doctor knew a lot more than the professor."

"Not for women."

"Well, go on with this string of bleeding hearts."

"The man who gave me this ruby was splendid—young like us. He was so fierce. Are you an angler?"

"No. What's that got to do with it?"

"Then you won't understand. My ruby lover splashed about, darning this way and that way, one day treating me with sovereign contempt, the next with anger, till I thought I'd never find him."

"And did you?"

"There's the ring to show."

"How about the fellow who gave you the opal?"

"Oh, that furnished me with a dead easy thing in the breaking. I was afraid he'd interfere with the diamond between sapphires, and I had to cut him short. I told him he'd broken my heart, for I never could marry a man who'd given me an opal—nothing but unhappiness could possibly result from such a union. But now tell me about your book of beauty. Your clum stole it for me yesterday out of your room."

"The rascal!"

"I've brought it with me to return it to you. There's No. 1, this black haired, black eyed girl. She'd be pretty if she hadn't such a homely mouth and a pug nose. How long were you engaged to her?"

"Oh, these girls aren't girls I've been engaged to. They're girls who have refused me. I only thought I loved them. I never really knew what love was till now."

"When did it strike you?"

"Just after guard mount yesterday morning. I was marching off the old guard, and I saw a group of girls among the lookers on. One face among them made me tremble. I recognized my 'belle dame sans merci.'"

"You talk just like the professor. What does 'belle dame sans merci' mean?"

"He stopped and gazed at her with all the fervor of his handsome eyes, but with an expression of despair in them. 'Beautiful one without mercy,' he replied."

"She turned and looked down through an opening in the trees on the Hudson, evidently to conceal a deep emotion."

"Oh, if I could only trust you!" she said in broken tones. "You, the only one of all—My punishment is more than I can bear."

"I swear!"

"It has come at last, but to mock me! Let go my hand!"

Her bidding was obeyed suddenly, so suddenly that she was surprised. At the same time the wooer exclaimed, somewhat irrelevantly, "Great Scott!"

"What's the matter?"

"Officer—and we're off limits!"

An officer with several ladies passed. The cadet faced, drew himself up stiff as a ramrod and brought his forefinger to his cap like a dummy worked by wires.

That night when the pair parted a ring set with twin diamonds—a family heirloom—passed into the necklace, and her photograph passed into his book of beauty.

Five years later they met again, both married. There was a delayed recognition. Then began a skirmish very different from the one in which they had engaged at West Point. Neither could remember the other's name.

CORPORATIONS BUSY IN THEIR WORK IN BEHALF OF FORAKER

Strenuous efforts are now in evidence on the part of the Republican managers to patch up a peace with Foraker in order to get from him an active support for Taft. Of course it is a well known fact that the corporations are behind Foraker. He is their friend and they have to have him in their business. At the same time the corporations know full well how to control the Republican National committee. And it can be set down as certain that the corporations have been getting in their work in behalf of the senior Ohio senator with the g. o. p. national committee. Foraker has been to New York and Chairman Hitchcock of the national committee, has been giving out interviews deprecating the snub administered to the senator by the Ohio State committee.

Hitchcock says in plain words that he wants Foraker to make speeches in behalf of Taft's election. It would seem from all this that there is to be a stop put to the Ohio Republican efforts to eliminate Foraker. All of which can be credited to the corporations who are to make big contributions to the Republican campaign funds without Taft's knowledge, after the fashion that they put up their millions in 1904 without Roosevelt's knowledge.

When Sherman, the Republican candidate for vice president, was notified the other day of his nomination, he took it upon himself to sneer at the Democratic slogan, "Shall the People Rule?" Sherman has the nerve to contend that the people have been ruling. Yet Sherman himself has been one of the chief Republican bosses in Congress who took care that the people should not rule in the House of Representatives. The bosses of Congress were afraid to let the House vote on several propositions, as to which public sentiment did not agree with their opinions.

Congressman Laning, Republican, of Ohio, who has been recommended and who, the Hot Springs correspondent of the New York Tribune said, had "had the misfortune to be indicted for embezzlement," will have to stand trial. He was concerned in a bank failure in consequence of which he was indicted for embezzlement and larceny. His counsel offered a plea in abatement, but the Common Pleas court refused it and the trial will proceed.

Cannot Stomach Taft-Roosevelt

(Philadelphia Record.)
The New York World did what it could to prevent the nomination of William J. Bryan for the presidency by the Democratic party, but it struggled vainly against the undertow of favoring sentiment in the hearts of the masses. That great newspaper, however, finds it impossible to support Taft and condone Roosevelt.

is fast recovering from its qualms incident upon its disappointment because of the choice of the Denver convention. In a strong leading article headed "Democracy vs. Plutocracy," it takes very vigorous ground against the election of William H. Taft. It also declares Mr. Bryan's speech of acceptance "admirable."

This is progress. We respectfully commend the reasoning of The World to the attention of our readers. It makes appeal to the sober sense of voters of all parties.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT.

Office of Comptroller of the Currency Washington, D. C., July 6, 1908.
Whereas, By satisfactory evidence presented to the undersigned, it has been made to appear that "The Park National Bank of Newark," in the city of Newark, in the county of Licking, and State of Ohio, has complied with all the provisions of the statutes of the United States, required to be complied with before an association shall be authorized to commence the business of banking:

A PERSONATION.

[Original.]
Russell Seymour at twenty was desperately in love with Barbara Ward, a few months his senior, but since he had nothing except what he might carve out of the future a marriage between them was not to be considered. Seymour went to a distant city to push his way in the world, declaring that when he had a competency he would return and if he found Barbara still unmarried would claim her.

Twenty years passed. Seymour had prospered, but had not married. At forty he was still very young looking young feeling and young acting, but he was at that age when a man begins to tire of clubs and the laborious part of keeping in social life. He longed for a home, and what was more natural than to revert to his old sweetheart to make that home for him? He wrote her that he was intending to make a trip and would call upon her. He inclosed his photograph.

Now, Barbara Ward had been a good deal of an invalid for many years. Her face was creased, and her hair was almost white. She looked ten years older than she was, while the likeness she received looked ten years younger than Seymour. Here was a gap in appearance alone of twenty years. In addition to this, she was broken down in health, and her time for rearing a family had passed. She was too sensible a woman to receive Russell Seymour as a lover. Her sister's child, now a woman of twenty-seven, had the same name as she, and pictures of the two taken at the same age looked like twins.

The Wards lived at a suburban town near a city. Seymour sent word of the day and hour of his expected arrival, and Miss Barbara drove to the station for him. Seymour, who was aware that a woman of forty would have passed the bloom of youth, looked forward to the meeting with misgivings. When he saw what he mistook for his old love but slightly aged he was astonished and delighted. Indeed, he began to worry about a few gray hairs that were creeping into his beard.

Now, Miss Ward had instructed her niece to entertain Mr. Seymour and make excuses for her own nonappearance, for she did not intend to show herself. It did not occur to Barbara to play the part of her aunt till she saw that she had been mistaken for her; then, the spirit of mischief being rife in her, she played it to perfection.

"How in the world," he asked, "have you managed to retain your youthful appearance?"
"No cares and a good conscience."
"You don't look a day over thirty."

Barbara winced at this, but managed to reply, "And you don't look a day over thirty either."

"How fortunate that we have both retained our youth! But the heart—that never grows old."
"Sometimes it grows cold." She cast aside her eyes.

"I assure you mine beats the same as when I parted from you."
"Then why have you not come for me before?"

This was a home thrust. He pleaded absorption in business, a desire to accumulate a certain amount and other excuses in which there was no warmth of love. "And you," he said, "why did you cease to write me?"

"How could I continue to write when your letters came at such long intervals as to indicate that you were changed?"

"Never mind that, sweetheart. We are united now, and we'll never part again in life."

Had the young lady not held the reins he would have taken her hand, stolen an arm around her waist, possibly a kiss. As it was, he was obliged to defer caresses till they reached home, where he found her unwilling to submit to them. He protested, and she dropped a hint that she must be won anew. Indeed, she left a doubt in his mind whether she could be won at all. They dined together, and Seymour was surprised that no one except Barbara was at the table. He asked if she lived alone, which disconcerted her, but she stuck to the truth by telling him that she lived with an aunt who was an invalid.

That night Barbara confessed to Miss Ward the part she was playing. Her aunt after reflection told her to continue the deception. Seymour was made welcome at the house and showed no inclination to depart. The day after her arrival the invalid came down for dinner, and Seymour was introduced by Barbara. A sadness came over Miss Ward's face when her former lover showed no recognition of her whatever. Indeed, he sat at table with a bored look on his face that a third person should have come to intrude upon their companionship.

There were many conferences between aunt and niece. The elder Miss Ward, fully realizing that she and Seymour were not for each other, desired Barbara to accept him in her stead. Barbara would have been pleased to do so but for what she considered disloyalty to her aunt. One day after an agreement between the two women they met Seymour together and told him the truth. Then Barbara said:

"To make amends for this deception we are agreed that if you wish either of us you may choose between us." Seymour stood looking at both in astonishment. Then the true man spoke in him in no uncertain tones. Advancing toward his old love, he took her hand:

"This is my choice."
Miss Ward placed his hand in that of her niece.

DELEGATES TO CONVENTION HAVE ARRIVED

Phi Sigma Chi Hold Reception at the Warden Hotel—"Frat" Ball at Buckeye Lake Tonight.

The delegates to the Phi Sigma Chi national convention which is in progress here this week have practically all arrived, together with many visiting members of the fraternity from nearby towns. The first social affair of the meeting here was the informal reception held in the parlors of the Hotel Warden Wednesday evening, at which there were about 60 "Phi Sigs" and ladies present.

Music was furnished by a local colored orchestra and punch was served in the front parlor.

According to the action of the last state legislature the ban has been placed on High school fraternities to such an extent that this may be the last meeting of its kind, or the last public demonstration to be permitted within this state.

The Schurr bill, passed at the last session of the state assembly, provides that any instructor in any public school of the state who knowingly permits a pupil to become identified with any school fraternity or secret society is guilty of an offense punishable by a fine of from $10 to $25 and that the student accepting such membership shall be suspended from school work until his withdrawal from active membership in such organization.

The "Phi Sigs" in this convention have determined to fight the case in the courts at the earliest opportunity that a test case presents itself, and in Friday's session will decide upon the employment of one of the most reliable firms of attorneys in the state to carry their case through the courts. The fight will probably be made on the basis that the fraternity's branch in this state hold a regular incorporation license and that, therefore, the Schurr bill is helpless to squelch the movement.

The national officers seem to agree with Mr. Herrod, of Lawrence, Kans., the national treasurer, who stated on Thursday evening that he felt confident that the ultimate decision of the case would be just to the societies all over the country.

The program for Thursday night includes the "frat" ball at Buckeye Lake park, which will be enjoyed by the members and ladies exclusively.

WOMEN OF BEAUTY

Homely and Unattractive Women are Learning the Secret of Beauty.

Nowadays the clever American woman studeis herself. She has learned that to be born unattractive doesn't mean that she must stay so all her life.

Science has put into her hands means of beautifying herself, and it is only the ignorant, slovenly and careless who refuse to accept this help.

A woman can have the plainest face imaginable, but if she has beautiful hair she will be attractive; and any woman can have beautiful hair. Just go to T. J. Evans, the druggist, and get a bottle of Parisian Sage, the ladies' favorite hair dressing and dandruff cure. Use it two weeks and your hair will be soft, silky, lustrous and luxuriant.

Parisian Sage is guaranteed by T. J. Evans to stop falling hair to cure dandruff or itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

It is the most delightful hair dressing in the world. It is not sticky or greasy, and in warm weather it cools and cleans the scalp, and drives away all disagreeable odors.

Evans' drug store Warden Hotel block, sells it for 50 cents a large bottle, or you can get it direct from the American manufacturers at the same price, all charges prepaid, Giroux Mfg. Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

WANTS TO STOP A TRICK OF GUARDSMEN

Adjutant General Critchfield has taken up with the war department the question of altering their method of enforcing the rule that a national guardsman enlisting in the regular army shall be given his discharge from the national guard. The recruiting officers, acting under orders from the war department, are requiring the guardsmen who wish to enter the regular army to bring their O. N. G. discharges with them when they come to enlist.

It is found that many of the guardsmen come to their commanding officers asking for discharges on this ground, who when they get them, do not enlist in the army at all. It is a convenient channel by which members of the national guard who wish to get out before their terms end can do so.

A DEBATE ON PRIMITIVE MAN.

[Original.]
Professor Edmunds was so wrapped in the study of primitive man, his origin and the savage traits he transmitted to his descendants, that he had no eyes, ears or any other perceptive organs for anything else. Indeed, he was more familiar with the gibbon, orang outang, chimpanzee and gorilla, man's nearest relatives, than the members of his own family. Absorbed in dreams of these kinsmen he would pass his own children on the street without recognizing them.

Kate Edmunds alone of all his children sympathized with him in his studies and was consequently his favorite. Kate worshiped her father, and it is questionable if her enthusiasm for fossils was not assumed for the purpose of pleasing the dear old man. At any rate, when she was eleven years old her mother met her one morning on the street with a necklace of bones around her neck and ordered her to go home and take off "the horrid" thing.

As Kate grew older she joined her father in his studies and on one occasion delighted him by discovering a similarity in the big toe bone of two animals which he had previously considered to belong to different species. From this time forth he made her an assistant instead of a pupil, and she worked with him continuously.

But, unfortunately for her father, Kate became a woman. Not that the professor noticed a change which occurred in a brief season. He took no note of changes except those that only agos could effect. When Kate took his hand and told him that she was about to be married he was thunderstruck. "What have you done with your doll?" he moaned.

Kate went with her husband to live in a distant city. For a brief season after her departure the professor's bones failed to interest him. Then some one sent him a bone of an animal unlike anything he had ever seen, and straightway the old man forgot his daughter in his efforts to construct the creature of which it had been a part. After that the only evidence that he remembered her at all was occasional inquiries why she was not in her seat at table.

At the end of a year Kate wrote her mother that she was coming home for a visit, but asked her not to inform her father, since she wished to surprise him. Kate arrived at the commencement season and at the hour when the president was holding a reception, with Professor Edmunds in attendance. So Kate arrayed herself in reception costume, went over to the president and, taking position behind a portiere in a room adjoining the one where her father was, began to talk prehistoric man in his bearing.

"Upon my word," said the professor, "there is a lady in there who knows more about the tertiary period than any woman I have ever heard talk. But she is making one egregious blunder. Introduce me to her."

The professor was introduced to his daughter, but whether he had forgotten her entirely or was too deeply engrossed in his subject to recognize her or had on his reading instead of his distance glasses doesn't matter. He plunged right into the work of correcting her error.

"I heard you say, madam," he began, "that evidences of the existence of man's progenitors are not found in the tertiary period. During the eocene system, a division of the tertiary, several orders of mammals were developed, including the ancestors of lemurs, monkeys, anthropoid or manlike apes."

"But these are only the germs, so to speak, not man himself," Kate replied. "There is no beginning, no stop in development. The anthropoid apes are simply a continuation in the development of man."

"And do you think, professor, that man of the present day will develop into something higher?"

"Undoubtedly—that is, if our planet is not in the meanwhile knocked into dust or burned by concussion at meeting some one of those opaque bodies known to be plunging through space."

"Or a comet," said Kate, with a twinkle in her eye.

"Nonsense, madam. Comets are gaseous. The earth has passed through their tails often."

"To return to man—man in his present stage of development. What would you think of a father who would forget his own child?"

"Such a failure of the faculty of memory would undoubtedly be inherited from his brutish ancestors. We have no evidence that lions, tigers, cats, dogs and other brutes remember their cubs after they are grown and have passed away from their parents."

"Do you refer to man in the present stage—to yourself, for instance—as brutal and to your child as a cub?"

"By no means. I have passed the brute condition, but now and again traits, like rudiments of organs that have ages ago become useless and degenerated, must necessarily crop out."

"But if the parent forgets the child why not the child forget the parent?"

"In the brute state the only use of the offspring has for the parent is food; among us the only use the child has for the parent is food, raiment and gewgaws. But while the memory of the parent becomes impaired with age that of the child—"

"This was too much for Kate, who had for some time been on the eve of betraying herself. She burst into laughter, which was echoed by those who had been listening, and threw her arms about her father's neck.

The astonishment of the professor was pathetic.

GROCERS MUST BE CAREFUL

After September 1st no gasoline will be permitted to be stored by retail grocers in Newark, unless it is in cans painted red, each bearing the word, "Gasoline" on it.

A law was passed at the last session of the legislature imposing a severe penalty for having gasoline for sale in anything but standard cans.

The state officials say the law will be enforced to the letter. Newark grocers will do well to comply with it. It is expected they will all be given formal notice of what will be required of them. There is a penalty of from $5 to $50 for violation of the new law.

It is not understood the grocers will have to throw away cans which they are using at present. They will have to have them painted red and also have the word, "Gasoline," on them.

The Best Pills Ever Sold.

THE OLD PIONEER

(By M. L. Wilson.)

Read before the Pioneer meeting at Hebron, Ohio, August 7, 1908.

There's something sublime, in the passing of Time,
At it follows man's footsteps, in darkness or shine;
Since sun, moon and stars had their primitive birth,
Old Time has assumed to be Monarch of earth,
Though kinship he bears none with Infinite life,
He promises peace but may often give strife;
He's a careful observer of days, months and years
But always looks kindly on Old Pioneers.

Just a few days ago, we were all girls or boys
With thoughts interwoven with school books and toys
We were clearing the brush that fettered the mind,
And building air castles, or, striving to find
A Canaan of freedom, where happiness flows,
Like the river of peace—where none dare oppose
But fortune is fickle and fame disappears,
So we now wear the features of Old Pioneers.

We acknowledge this claim, or the name here today,
But only to honor those first in the fray,
Who entered the forest dislodging all foes,
Subduing all forces that dared to oppose.
Therefore, to our grandsires the homage belongs
And Time will record it in poem and song
So long as the globe turns the cycle of years
The living will honor the Old Pioneers.

The Day-star is shining, directing the way
Lest follies allure us and lead us astray,
While evil is plunging with swing in the sea
And the Christ-spirit comes to set mankind free
The world in its progress from darkness to light
Is clearing the way for the triumph of right
Through the channel of mind, God's Day-star appears,
Where goodness and truth are the sole Pioneers.

AMUSEMENTS

A TALENTED YOUNG LADY.
Miss Nancy Rice the talented young harpist appearing at the Auditorium this week is a native of Louisville in the Blue Grass State, noted the world over for beautiful women, as is amply proved by the little lady in question, who is a very good sample of what is "bred in Ol' Kentucky."

But it is not only in good looks, a graceful manner, elegant costumes with a rare knack of wearing them to the best advantage, and undoubted musical talent that Miss Rice claims more than passing notice. Besides her many other accomplishments Miss Rice is an artist of recognized merit having had several paintings accepted for exhibition by the Chicago Art society. Miss Rice received her education under the able tuition of the celebrated Madame Della Coysdale winner of the harpists' gold medal at the world's fair in Chicago.

Apart from this abundance of success in the artistic world, Miss Rice is the lucky possessor of a charming personality that wins her many friends and an amiability that helps her to keep them.

In the social world she stands very high, and is a welcome guest in the best circles of her home town. Miss Rice is here for this week only, and those who have not yet heard her will regret not having done so.

The pictures this week are a decided improvement over any that have before appeared in this city. Next week Sidney Jerome, singing and talking comedian.

Miss Rice will this evening change her act, appearing as the "Little German Girl," direct from the Fatherland.

IDLEWILDE CASINO.

The bill for tonight at the Idlewild Casino, will be "Camille," with Isabe Jackson in the title role. This actress is said to be an exceptionally clever young woman in this role.

Nancy Boyer and Jack Warburton have many friends who will welcome their return to Newark at the head of their own company, opening at the Casino at Idlewild park on Sunday afternoon in a scenic production of the great Western play, "Girl of the Eagle Ranch." This is a new play written especially for Mamie Fleming and secured at a large price for the repertoire opening of Miss Boyer and her superb company.

In addition to the two weeks at the Casino three and possibly four bills will be presented each week, including Girl of Eagle Ranch, Wife in Name Only, A Bride's Temptation, Violet the Chorus Girl, The Belle of Richmond, Kentucky Sue and likely one or two of the old favorites which will be presented if requested. Popular prices.

RAILWAY AFFAIRS

Trainmen, Drilled in First Aid.

Reports from the Pennsylvania railroad's western Pennsylvania division—embracing those lines terminating in the Pittsburgh district—show that since January 1 of this year 4200 employees engaged in the operation of trains on that division have received instructions in how to render first aid to the injured.

That the employees realize that attention upon these lectures and their subsequent knowledge of what they have heard and had demonstrated to them, is taken into consideration when they are up for promotion, is indicated in the excellent attendance at all lectures. At a lecture in Verona 646 employees were present, at the Twenty-eighth street station in Pittsburgh 317 employees attended at one time, while at various other meetings held the number of employees exceeded 150. About 12 lectures are held each month.

The first aid to the injured instructions are given by the medical examiners of the relief department. Employees are taught how to place injured persons on stretchers, and how to carry the injured. They likewise learn to take primary care of wounds, fractures, burns and shocks without the use of drugs, until competent medical aid can be obtained. The lectures are simple, and can be comprehended by any intelligent layman.

We Need a Change.

The Washington, Ind., Democrat quotes a B. & O. S. W. employe as follows:

"There is plenty of work at the shops. There is always work to do at railway shops and men employed there are expected to work and foremen see that they do, but there is little work that absolutely has to be done; that is to say, the company could pull through without it, and it wouldn't surprise me if the company should lay us off one week every month and continue the short hours. I believe the company wants to give the men enough work to keep them but we have now on hand 15 engines costing thousands of dollars each and nothing for them to do. That's the situation."

There is a screw loose somewhere it is evident on every hand, and the sooner we have a change in the administration of public affairs the better.

Rate Will Never be Two Cents.

Interstate passenger traffic will probably never be made on a basis of two cents a mile-fare. Railroad are proceeding to issue new joint tickets on a basis of 2 1-2 cents a mile between stations located at states with two cent laws.

"No complaint has been made that such through rates as we have been making are unreasonable," said a passenger man recently. "If that has been done in the last year or so, the commerce commission could only pass upon the merits of that particular case. The railroads could easily enough in such event, show that rate at 2 1-2 cents a mile from state to state are not unreasonable, especially since the Pennsylvania system is allowed by court to charge 3 cents with one state."

IRON TRADE REVIEW

Cleveland, O., Aug. 20.—The Iron Trade Review today, says: At the present time it looks as if some 12,000 cars, including 7,000 for the Harman lines, would be ordered in the near future. The Iron Trade Review has been advised on good authority that prices have been asked for the following number of cars by the railroad corporations named:

300 cars for the D. L. & W.
2550 cars for the Wisconsin Central.
275 cars for the Newbury and South Shore.
70 caboose cars for the Southern Pacific.
100 isthmian canal commission ballast cars.
100 cars for the St. Louis & San Francisco.
1000 steel gondolas for the Chicago & Alton Railroad.
7000 cars for the Harriman railroad interests.

200 60,000-pounds capacity box cars and 250 80,000-pound capacity coal cars for the Iowa Central.
500 Atlantic Coast Line steel under frame ventilated box cars, 60,000 pounds capacity.

When it is remembered that an order for a large number of cars means orders and specifications for steel castings, bar iron, malleable iron castings, railroad specialties of various kinds, car wheels, lumber and a large variety of material, it will be readily appreciated that this business affects a great many interests scattered throughout the country.

In addition to the foregoing, it is pretty generally understood that the railroad companies are making specifications for a large amount of repair equipment, and are beginning to replace worn out equipment and material that has been sadly in need of repair for a good many months.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

Devotional half hour was led by Mrs. Reppert and was opened by singing.

The business part was then taken up and disposed of. One new member was received at this time. It was moved and carried to hold the county convention in Newark in September. Next week the subject will be "County and Local Superintendents Fair Work."

September 1st will be the annual election of officers and superintendents. Let all plan to be present and have a part in this election.

The meeting then adjourned to meet August 25, in the parlors of the First M. E. church.

Preserve Your Books

There is nothing so displeasing to the sense of taste as a well constructed library filled with books, the leaves projecting, covers half off, and possibly one-fourth of the contents of the book missing.

We Can Help You

If you will bring your books to us and let us make them as good as new, by fastening in the leaves and putting on new covers, it will not only help the appearance of the library but will enhance the value of your books. Old books become more valuable as they grow older. Especially is this true of special editions and rare works.

It will make your books of reference more valuable, because you know that the entire book is in the proper place, with a good substantial binding, preserving the contents for future reference.

A FAREWELL TO THE ELOPEMENT CLUB.

(Original.)
The Elopement Club was in session, and the president said:
"Girls, since our last meeting one of our number has accomplished what we all pledge ourselves to accomplish and is present to take leave of us. The secretary will read that part of our constitution bearing on the case."

The secretary then read:
ARTICLE II.
Recognizing the wrong committed by men (who by nature have an advantage over women in active fields) in sedulously supporting themselves alone and depriving women of the home and children, we each agree to capture some man for a husband and carry him off by persuasion or force, by hook or by crook, to the matrimonial altar.

ARTICLE III.
When a member has been successful in this praiseworthy object she shall before retiring from the club narrate the methods she has used.

The president then called on the successful member to comply with the requirements of the last named article. She arose and said:
"Girls, I must say that I have found my object more easily accomplished than I supposed—not that the man I have captured had in the beginning any special fancy for me; indeed, he was rather inclined to avoid me. He created in me an antagonism which spurred me on in my work, thus helping me amazingly. What do you suppose he had the brutality to say? Why, he said, 'A man is a fool to marry until he is too old to have any fun.'"

"I didn't scold him a bit for that. I just said: 'I think so too. Let's have a lot of fun.'"

"How?" he asked.
"We'll spin around together till we get tired of each other—go to theaters, drive, and all that. My uncle gave me a check last Christmas, and I'm dying to spend it."

"He assented to all except my spending any money, proposing to do that himself. I let him do it and put my check aside for a trousseau. He took me out to drive the next day and when we were in a lonely place put his arm around my waist. I didn't object in the least; indeed, I encouraged him. Then we went to the theater together, and he held my hand under a fold of my dress most of the time during the performance. Then we went boating, and, pulling the boat in under overhanging trees, he sat down at my feet and held my hand some more. On this occasion he offered to kiss me, but one must have a limit, and I drew the line there."

"I had been fishing for him a month when I got a bad scare. Another girl set her cap for him. If I had thought she could get him I wouldn't have stood in her way, but she was a stupid creature—didn't know men at all. I had a sharp hook at the end of my line, and I don't believe she had anything but bait. She would only divert him from me. So I made up my mind that I must put the steel through his gills and land him."

"I laid a desperate plan. I got a time table of trains to and from Eged lake and studied it. Then I asked the man who had said 'A man is a fool to marry till he's too old to have any fun' to take me out to the lake on a Saturday afternoon. He did. We got out there just in time for dinner and dined on the hotel porch overlooking the lake. It was growing dark when we finished, and he proposed a boat ride. I told him I feared it was too late. He insisted, and I yielded with pretended reluctance. In the boat I offered to bet him a kiss against a pound of candy that he couldn't pull across the lake in a given time."

"Here comes in the beauty of not going too far with a man. If I'd given him kisses he would have been tired of me by this time. As it was, he was crazy to get one. I asked for his watch to keep the time and when he wasn't looking turned the hands back nearly an hour."

"He won the bet."
"I had noticed by the time table that the last train left at 11; no other train till Monday morning. When it got too dark to stay on the water longer we landed and went up to the hotel. I saw several people I knew and took pains to pass directly under their noses that they should see that I was there. I had my watch in my belt and when my fish was not looking took note of the time. At a quarter past 11 I suggested that we go to the station. He looked at his own timepiece and said it was only half past 10. I told him he must be wrong and insisted on going. When we got to the station, the train had been gone half an hour."

"I fell over in his arms in a faint."
"When I came to myself again I looked up at him with all the reproach I could summon."

"My reputation!" I gasped. "It's gone forever. I'll be cut by everybody."
"I'll drive you home."
"Drive home fifty miles and at night! We couldn't get there till morning. Oh, heavens! What shall I do?"
"I'll stand by you," he said. "I'll kill any man who says you're not pure as an angel."

"Man!" I retorted. "Men have nothing to do with spreading scandals. It's the women. Do you think you could stop their tongues? No woman can be off like this with any man except her husband."

"Is that the only way out of it?" he gasped.
"Well, girls, I landed him. We were married and telegraphed a notice to the city papers, and—ah—blushing 'we're very, very happy.'"

The retiring member was complimented for her skill by the president, and a resolution was inscribed on the minutes of the meeting referring to her method as a stroke of genius.

ROSALIE WHITING.

WATERWORKS DISGRACE.

An Indignant Protest Against Conditions That Would Not Be Tolerated if Kansas City's Waterworks Were Privately Owned and Operated.

If the Kansas City waterworks system were owned and operated by a private corporation instead of by the municipality, it is easy to imagine that the newly created public utilities commission would be in continuous session these days and nights in a frantic effort to provide against an interruption of service because of floods. The commission would be making loud and insistent lament against the negligence and incapacity of a management that permits the waterworks of a great city to be menaced almost every spring, and pennywise almost would be issued demanding a correction of the fault under pain of forfeiture of franchise. And the commission would be fully justified in so doing.

Under municipal control the waterworks of Kansas City are and always have been a costly failure that would not be tolerated if a private corporation were responsible for their condition. Last fall when there was an interruption of the gas supply for a day the mayor instantly ordered an "investigation," although it was shown that the company operating the gas system had not completed its extensive arrangements to insure a continuous supply of gas to all of the city. Kansas City enjoys unsurpassed street car and telephone service, but if anything should happen to these utilities to endanger or inconvenience the public the politicians would be on their feet instantaneously demanding reprisals and punishments. Yet week after week and month after month go by and the water plant remains the same old uncertain and unreliable tax eating testimonial to the city's incapacity and patience.

Municipal ownership and operation were never more of a failure than in the instance of Kansas City and its water supply. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been expended upon the waterworks, engineers have been hired and discharged, flow lines have been built and washed away, high priced pumps and other equipment have been purchased and installed, and yet the system is only a precarious patchwork which any unusual condition jeopardizes. If Kansas City's waterworks were privately owned and operated the people of this community would rise and demand that they be torn up and an entirely new and up to date system constructed. As a municipal institution, however, it is tolerated as the prey of politicians and the reward of partisan patronage.—Kansas City Journal.

A CHANGE IN CHICAGO.

Costly Generating Plant Goes Out of Existence—The City Must Pocket the Loss.

According to reports from Chicago, all generating stations of the municipal electric light plant have been shut down and current is being purchased from the Chicago sanitary district, which utilizes the water power of the drainage canal. That this will reduce the cost of lighting the streets is reasonably certain, but there is no certainty that it will reduce it to a figure as low as would be given by a private company, because a large proportion of the lighting cost—distribution and maintenance of circuits and lamps—will still be in the hands of the city and therefore most unlikely to be economically administered.

Even if the experiment is a financial success from now on, the present change involves an enormous loss to the city in the practical wiping out of its costly generating system. This loss, if charged up to the period during which the plant has been in operation, would greatly increase the estimated cost of lights for the past twenty-one years, which was already in excess of lighting by contract. It is such occurrences as this which show how worthless are the figures of costs given out by city lighting plants, ignoring, as they do, the changes entailed by progress in the art of lighting or by special contingencies. The only time a city knows what its lights are costing is when it has a contract with a company. Municipal lighting is a gamble in which the city stacks the cards against itself by its unbusinesslike methods of operating and accounting.

How to Make a Belt.

If the belt for a woman is made of silk, cut it on the straight of the goods. Make it two and a quarter inches longer than the size of the waist. This allows for seams and the lap. For a stout person the belt when finished should not be more than half an inch wide, while the slim woman's belt may be an inch wide when finished. To the outside of the skirt stitch one edge, taking off a three-eighths of an inch seam. Turn the edge which remains over the top of the skirt and turn another three-eighths of an inch seam. Stitch either by hand or on the machine.

How to Clean Cretone.

To clean cretone it should first of all be thoroughly shaken in the open air and then washed in bran water without rubbing. Rinse in a second bowl of bran water, to which salt and vinegar have been added in the proportion of one tablespoonful of each to a quart of water, in order to prevent the colors from running. Wring tightly and roll up with a fold of clean towel between each roll. Using a heavy hot iron, iron the cretone on the wrong side until it is quite dry. As the bran water itself stiffens, there is no necessity for starching.

When Angelica was seventeen her parents married her to Ezekiel Ballou, aged sixty-five and seven times a millionaire. Seven years later Ballou died and left a widow without children, but with $10,000,000.

Now commenced Angelica's real life. She was old enough not to need a chaperon, yet young enough to enjoy the prominence given her by her wealth, a beauty that was in its prime and great sprightliness. She at once became the favorite of society and lived in some of the best residences in town and country. Men flocked to her in untold numbers, but what is easily gained is not valued, and she would have none of them. Several of her suitors were men of prominence who could have advanced the young widow in a way not to be attained by wealth alone, but the trouble was they were to be had for the asking. There was no sport in a chase where a hundred hunters were firing at her on sight. She preferred to turn huntress and bring down the game herself.

Among the young men of her acquaintance was Paul Debonair, whose father had died and left his son several hundred thousand dollars. Paul spent all the income, but resolutely refused from touching a cent of his principal. Pleasure was his object. More money than he had he would not have valued. He had enough to give him what he wanted and not enough to bother him by attending to it. He would never marry. In short, he was determined to get the most out of life in the way that seemed most desirable to him—that is, as a man of the world.

One evening he went to a ball. Angelica was there, surrounded by a crowd of men elbowing one another to get near her. If she moved from one room to another, within a few minutes every one of those men was to be found in the room to which she had gone. If she went back, they went back. Paul Debonair looked at this spectacle with disgust. He danced in the same set with Angelica, but every time it became his part to take her hand to swing he would pretend to have made a mistake and swing some one else.

"Great heavens, Paul," said one of his friends, "do you know whom you are snubbing? That's the young Widow Ballou, worth millions."

"I don't care if she is the Widow Croesus," said Paul in a tone loud enough to be heard by the widow herself, "and worth billions."

Paul Debonair had sounded the death-knell to his independence. Angelica sent one of her circle of attendants to bring him to her and introduce him. He consented, but if his object was to avoid rudeness he might as well have declined, for his brusqueness and indifference were unparadiseable. Angelica had noticed while he danced that Tersichore was one of his idols. He abandoned himself to the motion and the music as one in a heavenly dream. Quick to see a weak point, she resolved to attack him through this love. She asked him to dance. He had the effrontery to decline on the ground that he did not know how to dance.

But it was not long after this that Angelica gave a ball herself. She had given out through her friends that she felt very much hurt at the treatment Debonair had given her, that she had been surprised that any man should treat an unprotected woman so rudely, but that she would give him an opportunity, to redeem himself. These remarks were intended for Paul's ears, and when he received an invitation to her ball he decided at least to accept it.

There being no orchestra at hand capable of playing dance music as Angelica wished it played, she imported one, and when Paul entered the ballroom he heard voluptuous sounds that tingled in the tips of his toes. He went directly to the hostess, who smiled upon him and said:

"I have been saving my first dance for you, Mr. Debonair. I am hostess here, and my word is law. You are commanded to dance with me."

In another moment Debonair was gliding over a waxed floor with a dream of loveliness in his arms. The soft strains, the beautiful face so near his own, the liquid eyes fastened always upon his, were an irresistible incantation. Then, too, he was dancing with one who was, like himself, a born dancer. They passed banks of flowers and momentarily caught their perfume. They sailed around water springing from a fountain, and as the tiny drops fell they sang a song of love. But all Paul Debonair saw was a beautiful face, a swelling bosom, a pair of dark eyes.

Paul Debonair realized that he was being snared. Matrimony had been a horror to him, and this only possible outcome to the widow's witchery appalled him. He left on the next steamer for Europe. Angelica followed him. One evening while he was at a ball at the American embassy at Rome the orchestra struck up the waltz to which he had danced with the Widow Ballou. He was standing in a dream of that one dangerous dance of his life when suddenly an arm was laid upon his shoulder. His own passed involuntarily around a waist, and he was whirled away. Again he was in the toils of the witch.

When they rested, the game had been played to a finish and the widow had won. Paul Debonair had surrendered while they whirled. She led him captive back to America, and the haunts that had known him knew him no more. Every one said what a pity to spoil so delightful a bachelor by making a married man of him.

POTPOURRI MAKING.

How to Prepare and Select the Various Ingredients.

For a dweller in the country or the garden surrounded suburb the following suggestions for gathering and preserving the sweetness and fragrance of the spring and summer for delectation in the winter months by setting up a potpourri jar are recommended to every young girl who has access to a garden or the fields and woods.

Any one of the quaint and pretty patterns of rose jars procurable at any big shop will answer for holding the potpourri itself, which consists not only of rose leaves, but of the petals and leaves of any sweet scented plant. The putting up of the potpourri consequently extends through spring and early summer, just as the different blossoms come out. There are a few general directions which must be closely followed in making potpourri. The rose jar itself, as also the vessel in which the potpourri is mixed, must be perfectly new—must never before have been used. The salt used in the making must be toasted in the oven to insure its absolute dryness. The blossoms and leaves must be young and tender when gathered, entirely unwilted and must be used when perfectly fresh—not after lying by or standing in water. The ingredients must be thoroughly stirred up at least once—better twice—a day, and when the potpourri is all gathered and mixed it should be exposed for two or three weeks to the heat of the August sun.

Here follow two recipes for potpourri ingredients. They are copied from an old book handed down from mother to daughter in a German baronial family and have been followed, as have also the general instructions given above, and found reliable and satisfactory even in the present generation:

First.—One pound fresh picked orange blossoms, half a pound of roses, half a pound of mace, half a pound of lavender and four ounces of marjoram leaves, four ounces of carnations, four ounces oxalis, one ounce rosemary, one ounce cloves and half an ounce of bay leaves.

Second.—One pound of orange blossoms, one pound of roses, half a pound of red carnations, half a pound each of marjoram and myrtle, two ounces each of nutmeg, thyme, lavender, sage, camomile and sweet basil, fifteen or twenty bay leaves and three handfuls of jasmine. Let the mixture stand for a month, stirring twice a day, and then add ten ounces of powderedorris root, two ounces of cinnamon and two of cloves, with six drams each of yellow sandalwood and cyper.

Both the above recipes call for half a pound of salt—absolutely dry—to draw out every bit of perfume.

Newest Diversion.

"He is a staunch admirer of the national game."

"What game?"
"Baseball. Is there another?"
"Well, it is getting to be mighty popular in some quarters to decline to accept a nomination for vice president."

The Coming Man.

Do not snub the office boy. He is little; you are great! He's an atom on the force. You are such a heavyweight! Say a kind word to the lad. Though you may be feeling cross. In ten years or maybe less He may have become the boss.

Do not lord it over him. In an overbearing way. In a run of several years. Petty animosities may not pay. Later things may come his way—Fortune is a fickle lass—And he may be signing checks While you're in the same old class.

Now he doesn't count for shucks; Every one about the place Hands him orders right and left. Keeps him always on the chase. If some party makes a jest Of his home stitched trousers patch He'll remember it, you bet. When he runs the shooting match.

When a new and awkward boy Comes in timidly and shy No one seeing him can tell When he'll catch the boss' eye. Wise and knowing ones will not Give the boy the double cross. For it's mighty hard to pick From the lot the future boss.

Love, Honor, Etc.

"Has obey been stricken out of the marriage service?"

"Yes; I believe it has."
"Anything taken its place?"
"I think so."
"What?"
"Divorce."

Nothing Doing.

"Let's go out and paint the town."
"Can't."
"Why not?"
"It is a prohibition town, and the best we could do would be to white-wash it."

Not Organized.

"I am a self made man."
"One nice thing about that."
"What?"
"You don't have to carry a union card."

Seemed Like Proof.

"You know old Grandfather Money-bags?"
"Yes, slightly."
"He wants me to marry him."
"First I had heard he was in his dotage."

Sweet.

I love to sing, I love to play; I love a happy summer day; Or all the things I love to do (I've tried it just a time or two) I love to have my own sweet way.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

TIME MADE TO ORDER.

In staid and ancient London town They're going to turn the clocks ahead. So that the merry villagers Will one hour sooner go to bed. That doesn't sound so bad, but wait; A joker in it hidden lies. It means that those who practice it A whole hour sooner must arise.

It's very fine to read about This rising with the early dawn And getting out the morning traps To shake the wrinkles off the lawn Or eating with the rising sun And hurrying to shop or store, But let them come to try it out And half the people would be sore.

Those who are constituted so They brisly tumble out of bed Would give approval to the scheme. But how about the sleephead? He'd hear the morning whistle blow And try his drowsy eyes to force, Declaring he would rather snooze And let old nature take its course.

This scheme for making people prompt By simply setting up the clocks Is due before it goes in force. For several hard and able knocks, But after it is working well The earlier the whistle toots No doubt they'll learn to lift them selves.

By pulling gently on their boots.

Just Like a Woman.

"I've just worked myself to death for you."

"Oh, have you?"

"Yes."

"When can I collect it?"

"What?"

"Your life insurance."

Wasted Effort.

There are people who have unexcelled facilities for lying who have absolutely refused to rise either to the occasion or the bait.

That Kind of a Noise.

"He thinks he will make a great orator. He has mastered the first principle."

"What is that?"

"He is able to think on his feet."

"Judging from the few times I have heard him talk, he appears to be also doing a part of his thinking with his feet."

Self Improvement.

"They say a man by taking thought can build himself over."

"Fit himself with a new brain?"

"Yes, and new features."

"I don't know about that, but by getting fresh with an amateur pugilist he can have a maulard roof put on his face free of charge."

Slightly Negative.

"You have been through Central America?"

"Yes; I traveled over much of that country."

"What is the principal industry there?"

"Well, I should say lack of industry."

Felt His Importance.

"How much does the baby weigh?"

"I have no idea, but I should think from looking at the father that he might weigh something like a couple of tons."

Probably.

"I hate to pay doctor's bills."
"Yes, but there are worse things."
"For instance?"
"Having the undertaker collect from your estate."

High Provisions.

When thirsty the air skipper Can tap the Milky Way And drink from the big dipper A draft of curds and whey.

WASHING SUMMER DRESSES.

How

INSTITUTE WILL CLOSE TOMORROW

Election of Officers Will Occur and Several Interesting Lectures Will Be Given.

The devotional exercises of the Teachers' Institute, Thursday, were conducted by Superintendent Powell.

At the opening of the day's work, the teachers were all present and eager to launch into the day's work. The closing of the day's work, the interest manifested by the teachers in the institute was very evident.

It is apparent that the institute is the most important in the history of the county to take advantage of the opportunity to receive as much instruction as possible from the many good teachers that are being supplied by the institute. Not an opportunity is let go by, and every new and important matter presented is eagerly grasped by those in attendance.

Everyone present realizes the importance of the work and of the benefit it will be to them in the school-room when they come to take up their work for the school year, and it is with this thought in view that the interest is stimulated in the institute work.

The principal speakers of the morning session were Prof. Graves and Mrs. Thomsen. Prof. Graves' subject was "Moral Content of Certain Studies." In his initial manner he commanded the closest attention of his auditors throughout his entire discussion of this subject.

He presented many new and original thoughts, giving a clear and complete analysis of all the points discussed. Prof. Graves is a clever lecturer and has a fascination about his delivery that enables him to command the undivided attention of all in his hearing.

The apt illustrations presented, the clear and concise thought developed, and the logical conclusions arrived at give him great power over his auditors.

There is instilled into his lectures enough wit and humor to add spice to any subject he may present.

An interesting and profitable topic was that of history brilliantly discussed by Mrs. Thomsen, of the Chicago University. Her knowledge of this subject is profound, and her manner of delivery truly fascinating. Already she has endeavored herself to Licking county teachers.

The teachers of Licking county are enjoying one of the most profitable institutes ever held in Central Ohio.

The growing interest in the occasion adds to the enthusiasm of the instructors and those who have a part in the program, and it is with redoubled energy that they launch into the discussions that are presented at each session.

The officers, president and secretary and executive committee are putting forth every effort to insure the teaching an interesting and profitable time while in attendance. They are alert to every interest and no time does the work lag.

Since the opening session Monday afternoon, there have been a goodly number of new arrivals, and these numbers have furthered the enthusiasm that provided the gathering of teachers in our county in a real sense that the conditions that confront them in their work today are much more promising than in years gone by. There is no doubt that many more promising conditions than ever before and these facts add to a great extent to stimulating an interest and a renewed energy in the work of the county teachers in the school-room.

The increased salary of the teachers, together with the assurance that they are to be employed at least eight months of the year, at his own vacation in the fall, his new life into his work and career within his heart a fervent love for his noble profession. The minimum salary paid Licking county teachers is $40 per month, and his with eight months employment, out of each year, has been the means of bringing back to the professions who were out of it for a time and making enthusiastic the younger teacher.

Today the schools of Licking county do not have to go begging for teachers, as was the case a few years ago, but so far as known practically every school in the county is provided with a teacher and one who is familiar with all the progressive methods of present day teaching and possessed of ripe scholarship.

Tomorrow will be the greatest day of this great institute. Prof. Graves will deliver his famous lecture on the subject, "A Great Teacher," and Superintendent Powell his equally famous lecture. The election of officers for next year will also take place tomorrow.

NOTES.

Miss Della Murch, formerly of Granville, this county, now teacher of Latin in the Franklin, Ohio, schools, is here attending the institute.

Mrs. Thomsen's lecture and recitations are intensely interesting to the teachers.

County School Examiners Lake, Nichol and Orr, are constant attendants at the institute.

OBITUARY

GEORGE A. WILSON.

The George A. Wilson funeral will be held at Trinity church Friday afternoon at 2:30. The Rev. L. P. Franklin conducting the service, after which interment will take place at Cedar Hill cemetery.

H. B. UNDERWOOD.

The funeral of the late H. B. Underwood took place at the home, 421 Woods avenue, Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. A large number of beautiful floral tributes evinced the esteem in which Mr. Underwood was held.

MRS. THOMAS ORR.

Cora Orr, wife of Thomas Orr died at her home one mile southeast of Jannville at 8:30 this morning, death resulting from a complication of diseases. The husband and three children survive her.

The funeral services will be held at Fairmount Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, and interment will be made in the Fairmount cemetery.

MR. MARK PRICE.

Word has been received here telling of the death of Mr. Mark Price, in a hospital in Denver, Colo. Mr. Price removed to the West from Licking county about three years ago on account of failing health, and his death came Tuesday as a result of a long illness.

Previous to his leaving this part of the country Mr. Price was engaged in farming on his property in the Welsh Hills, but was compelled to seek a more favorable climate, and removed to El Paso, Tex., where he engaged in the dairy business. Recently he was compelled to undergo a critical surgical operation from which he never completely recovered.

Mrs. Price, the widow, was the daughter of the Rev. R. B. Smith of El Paso, while the deceased, a nephew of Attorney J. B. Jones, of this city, was one of a most distinguished family of children of Mrs. Sarah J. Price and the late Thomas D. Price, of the Welsh Hills. He is survived by six brothers: Prof. H. M. Price, of Chicago university; J. E. Price, H. C. Price, dean of the department of agriculture of Ohio State university; the Rev. S. E. Price, president of Ottawa university, Ottawa, Kan.; the Rev. O. J. Price, a Baptist minister in Lansing, Mich.; and Enoch Price, a prominent attorney now practicing law in the city of Chicago.

A message was received from the Rev. S. E. Price, Thursday, to the effect that he expects to arrive in Newark Saturday with his body. The service will take place at the home of the mother, of the deceased in the Welsh Hills and will be conducted by the Rev. Bunyan Spencer, pastor of the Welsh Hills Baptist church.

CLEVE DAGUE.

Mr. Cleve Dague, formerly of New Albany, now of 60 McMillen avenue, Columbus, O., died at 11:10 p. m. on Wednesday, August 10, of typhoid fever. The immediate cause of his death was typhoid fever. He leaves a wife, formerly Miss Mabel Pittsford, and a little daughter, Berni, to mourn his death. His little son, Bryce, died last April at the same disease.

Funeral services will be held Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, from the United Brethren church on Fifth avenue. Rev. W. A. Smith officiating, and burial will be at Union cemetery.

CREATING MUCH TALK AND GREAT PRAISE.

SURPRISING GOOD BEING DONE IN THIS LOCALITY.

It seems that everybody is talking about Root Juice these days. The new medicine must have wonderful curative merit or so many local people would not be so enthusiastic in praise of it. The scientist said: "The reason so many people get well after taking Root Juice a few weeks, is that the Juice contains in proper proportion the most soothing, healing and strengthening ingredients for the stomach, bowels, bladder, liver and kidneys known to the scientific world, by making the blood making and blood filtering organs healthy. Root Juice removes many ailments." The great remedy within the last few months has made so many remarkable cures at Fort Wayne, Lima, Bellefontaine and Kenton that it is not surprising that so many of our people are buying it. It seems to be wonderful for any trouble of the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys and has proved its remarkable merits to scores of people here in Newark, for bloating, belching, constipation, sick headache and other evils of bad digestion. In rheumatic and kidney troubles, also nervousness, it is surprising how fast health is recovered under the juice treatment.

The people at the City Drug Store are well informed in relation to the merits of the remedy and have a very pleasant way in telling all they know of it. Many that took one bottle have returned for more and said that Root Juice is the most wonderful medicine on earth. It is sold during the demonstration period for $1 a bottle or three bottles for $2.50.

EXAMINERS ORGANIZE.

The Licking County Board of School Examiners at a session held on Thursday morning organized for the coming year as follows:

President, R. H. Nichols of Pataskala.

Vice president, P. P. Orr, of Jacksonton.

Secretary, Charles Lake of Granville.

Some Newark People Fully Realize It Now.

When the back aches from kidney

When urinary troubles annoy you, There's a certain way to find relief; A sure way to be cured.

Doan's Kidney Pills will do it. Newark people endorse this claim.

John W. Lippincott, 127 No. Eleventh street, Newark, Ohio, says: "I suffered from rheumatism for a long time and often had such severe pains across my loins that I could not move until the attacks passed off. There was a constant dull aching across the small of my back and if I moved quickly or brought any strain on the muscles of my back, I was rewarded with sharp knife-like twinges throughout my body. My back became very weak and the least exertion completely exhausted me. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills I procured a box at Crayton's drug store, started using them, and they gave me prompt relief. I was so encouraged that I continued their use until entirely free from my trouble." (From statement given November 7, 1904.)

RESULTS TELL.

On Nov. 28, 1907, Mr. Lippincott said: "I cheerfully confirm my former recommendation of Doan's Kidney Pills as the benefit I obtained from their use has remained permanent. I have never been in better health than at the present time and owe my good condition to Doan's Kidney Pills."

It is easy to reform some men, but they won't stay reformed.

Many heiresses would much rather marry a title than have a real husband.

When a woman's temper gets ruffled a man might try edging it with lace.

As long as a man is on good terms with his dinner he is still in the winning class.

When a young man gets to making himself indispensable a girl would better dispense with him at once unless she has made up her mind never to do so.

A man never tells his wife to keep the change. He knows she has enough human intelligence to do it without orders.

One way a young man might try being irresistible is to be a millionaire.

In the case of the Bassett Presley company vs. Thomas E. Brown and David C. Brown, the defendants have filed an answer denying the allegations in the plaintiff's petition. They have also filed a motion that the plaintiffs be required to give security for the costs in the case. Flory & Flory.

Delinquency Reduced.

The records of the auditor's office in the court house show that the tax delinquency in Newark city for the year 1908 is about $1000 less than for the year 1907. Considering the stringency in the money market during the past nine months, this is regarded as an unusual state of affairs.

Delinquency Reduced.

Probate Judge Brister this morning received a letter from the superintendent of the State Hospital for Epileptics at Gallipolis instructing him to send James E. Wolf to that institution. Young Wolfe is the lad who had a narrow escape from being burned to death while in an epileptic fit near the children's home last week. The transfer will be made soon.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve Wins.

Tom More, of Rural Route 1, Cochran, Ga., writes: "I had a bad sore come on the instep of my foot and could find nothing that would heal it until I applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Less than half of a 25 cent box won the day for me by affecting a perfect cure." Sold under guarantee at F. D. Hall's drug store.

"As the Twig is Bent the Tree's Inclined"

How is it with you? Are you a people of your household? Are they saving money? Have they tried to appreciate the value of the dollar? Are you endeavoring to instill into their minds correct ideas concerning thrift and economy? Are you seeking the opportunity to "bend the twig"? Would you like to be a plan suggestion? If so, here it is: Send the young folks to our bank with the first spare dollar that comes into their hands. The next dollar should be treated in like manner, and the practice so continued until a fixed habit of saving has been established. A goodly bank account will soon result; the young folks will get an inkling of the ways of business, and being thus "inclined," are likely to grow up into straight and thrifty machoed.
